Permanent Link to New HAPS Alliance to promote high-altitude vehicles
2021/07/29

Telecom, technology and aviation industry leaders join forces to create the HAPS Alliance to connect more people, places and things by using the stratosphere. A group of global industry leaders is forming the HAPS Alliance, an association of world-leading telecommunications, technology, aviation and aerospace companies united in promoting the use of high-altitude vehicles in the Earth's stratosphere to eliminate the digital divide and bring connectivity to more people, places and things worldwide. Members who have committed to join the HAPS Alliance include SoftBank Corp.'s HAPSMobile Inc. Alphabet's Loon LLC AeroVironment Inc. Airbus Defence and Space Bharti Airtel Limited China Telecom Corporation Limited Deutsche Telekom AG Intelsat US LLC Nokia Corporation SoftBank Corp. Telefónica S.A. Telefonaktiebolaget LM Ericsson. The HAPS Alliance is being created so member companies can collectively advocate for High Altitude Platform Station (HAPS) business development with the relevant authorities in various countries, build a cooperative HAPS ecosystem, develop common product specifications and promote the standardization of HAPS network interoperability. All of these activities will be key to the Alliance's aim of addressing diverse social issues and creating new value by providing telecommunications network connectivity worldwide through the utilization of high altitude vehicles. Polar stratospheric clouds. (Photo: Paul Newman, GSFC/NASA) The Alliance, originally an initiative from HAPSMobile and Loon, will have members from participating leading companies across the aerospace, technology and telecom industries to carry out the Alliance's activities. The launch of the HAPS Alliance follows an April 2019 announcement between HAPSMobile and Loon where the companies formed a strategic alliance to advance the use of high-altitude vehicles. High-altitude network connectivity platforms operate in the stratosphere — above ground infrastructure but below satellites — allowing for near ubiquitous coverage that avoids ground clutter and significant latency issues. These advantages make such vehicles a promising solution for expanding mobile coverage to areas where connectivity is lacking — mountainous terrain, remote islands, marine regions and developing countries — as well as for IoT and 5G use-cases. The HAPS Alliance seeks to create an ecosystem to support next-generation global connectivity needed to revolutionize the world's mobile networks.
